

ABSTRACT

A biological, DNA security and medical alert system include a remote monitoring unit worn by a user. The remote unit includes biosensors that monitor biorhythms of the user, a audio and video device for communication, a microprocessor monitors data collected by the biosensors to detect anomalies indicative of a medical condition, alerts a central unit, and automatically, manually and or voice control administers medications stored in the remote unit.